

Leon Jackler is an attorney, commercial pilot, and flight instructor, who has been active at the College Park Airport for several decades. His fascination with all things aviation began when he was 3 years old watching the Blue Angels perform. He solo'd an airplane at age 16 and has accumulated thousands of hours in numerous aircraft types including his own Grumman Cheetah. In addition to flight hours, he has also accumulated a breadth of aviation knowledge, both technical and historical. Since graduating from law school in 1998 he has also worked as a senior attorney in the Federal Government. He lives in Silver Spring with his wife, kids, and dog.
